Fighting insurance companies is an unfair battle. Don't do it alone.

Simon Muller has practiced law in Alberta since 1994, with a practice focused on serious personal injury, medical malpractice and insurance litigation.

For more than a decade, Simon represented insurance companies and their insureds. That experience gave him an in-depth understanding of how insurers investigate and evaluate claims, assess litigation risk, and make decisions about settlement and trial. Today, he uses that insight to help individuals and businesses navigate serious personal injury, medical malpractice and insurance claims with a clear understanding of how these claims are assessed and how to effectively advocate for his clients.

A substantial part of Simon's practice involves serious medical malpractice claims, including negligent birth injuries, wrongful death, negligent surgeries and other life-altering injuries. These cases often involve complex medical evidence and multiple medical specialists and other experts. Simon works closely with his clients and the appropriate experts to understand what happened, assess whether the care provided met the required standard, and build a clear picture of how the injury has affected the client's health, work, independence and future.

Beyond medical malpractice, he helps clients facing other serious and life-changing injuries understand their options and pursue the compensation they need to move forward, including following motor vehicle and motorcycle accidents and other catastrophic or fatal incidents.

Simon also represents individuals and businesses in disputes with their own insurers, including disability claims, property and commercial losses, coverage disputes and business interruption claims.

Simon is recognized by The Best Lawyers in Canada for his work in Personal Injury Litigation and is "Repeatedly Recommended" by Lexpert for Personal Injury. He has represented individuals and corporations at trial, on appeal and before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Simon serves clients from McLeod Law's downtown and south Calgary offices.
